When we arrived in 1972 Hallandale was a much more Rural place not as much traffic

The local Bank was run by Carol Owen and if you needed anything he was very easy to deal with there were many movie theatres and even a drive in we had an annual picnic in Golden Isles and the residents cooked the food over half Barrels

Gulfstream allowed us to come for Breakfast and watch the horses train my children loved it there

The Diplomat Mall was an indoor one where people went to meet other residents

we had Publix and Albertsons as our Grocery Chains as well as a Mom & Pop grocery store

If you lived in Hallandale you got a 10% discount at Barnetts and everyone got their hardware needs there as well as many other items there was no Home Depot or Lowes
