BUSINESS PLAN INTRODUCTION

Craft breweries are a historic means for satisfying the public's demand for a greater variety of fresh quality beer. In the late nineteenth and early twentieth century, the United States supported nearly four thousand breweries, the majority being independent local and regional operations producing a vast array of Old World beer styles. Without question, Prohibition nearly destroyed this brewing tradition.

Today America is experiencing a revival of its brewing tradition. Craft breweries are defined by the industry as small breweries which produce less than 15,000 barrels of beer annually, and distribute their beer for off-premise consumption. As of January 2006, there were more than 7500 craft breweries and brewpubs operating in the United States and Canada. In 2005 the craft brewery and brewpub industry in the United States experienced a 9% annual increase in barrels of beer produced, when compared to production in 2004. This was the first major spike for craft beer.

The current demand for greater variety of more flavored beer originated with the import beer market. As the import beer market grew, beer drinkers had an opportunity to further educate their taste for the great variety of world beer styles. As a result the craft brewing industry in the United States has benefited from the public's increased awareness of and demand for more flavorful beers. Imported beers account for more than 10% of all beer sales in the United States, which represents a significant market share (in 2013 Craft Beer represented 7.8% of all beer sales). However the craft beer industry has demonstrated significant growth in recent years. Craft beer sales have risen at least 10 percent annually since 2008. In 2013 the overall national beer sales finished at -1.9%. In comparison the craft beer segment finished at 17.2%. 2018 showed an 11% increase of market share, giving craft beer an 18% volume growth.

Florida has seen tremendous growth in volume, growing nearly 10 times over the past seven years. Florida now ranks amongst the top 5 states in craft beer growth, but still ranks 44th in breweries per capita.

Beer drinkers are clearly demonstrating their demand for a greater variety of full-flavored beers. Unfortunately, beer does not transport well, and most styles of beer begin to deteriorate in quality if they are not consumed within a few weeks of having been brewed. While this is clearly a disadvantage for imported beers, craft breweries are at a clear advantage in being able to deliver the freshest product to the consumer.

Advantages of the Craft breweries: One of the advantages of the craft brewery is its ability to supply its product to the consumer when it is at its peak of freshness. Craft breweries are brewing a handcrafted product on a more limited scale where quality is the more important concern. For this reason, using the highest quality traditional ingredients - malted barley, hops, yeast, and water — is justified, rather than the chemical, and cheaper adjuncts such as corn and rice which are used by larger scale brewers to cut cost. Fresh quality beer produced locally, without chemicals in processing or for preservation is the key note of the craft brewing industry.

The craft brewery has the additional advantage of brining the beer drinking public into immediate contact with the equipment and operation associated with beer production. A well-designed craft brewery with a tap room allows the public to witness firsthand the creation of the handcrafted beer they are drinking.

The Market: Our cities have a growth population which supports a variety of restaurants and pubs. Many of these restaurants and pubs are carrying several craft brewed beers on several taps and enjoying significant sales of these products. These currently operating licensed retail outlets are our primary targets as customers. Our craft brewery will be identified with the local community and will appeal to the city residents who, with friends, family members, and business associates, are eager to support a locally produced beer. Having once tasted our fresh ales, these consumers will be sure to ask for our product at their favorite local restaurant or pub. Specialty beers can be produced for seasonal holidays, community events, and local bars that desire to offer a unique, specially contracted beer to their customers. To increase our market exposure, table tents, coasters, beer menus, T-shirts, decorative keg tap handles, and other promotion materials will be utilized at the brewery to and distributed to our licensed liquor retail clients.

Since our products will be sold to licensed retail outlets, promotions will be handled at the point-of-sale using these low-cost promotional items, which will be provided free of charge to our accounts. We will earn the confidence of our retail licensees and their beer drinking customers by providing a consistent quality product and supporting that product with point-of-sale promotional items, and creating tap takeovers and beer pairings with food.

Production Process: HallandAle Brewing Company will initially produce three styles of ales. Brewing begins by cracking the highest quality malted barley with a roller mill. This grist is then mixed with hot water in the mash tun, producing mash. A sweet liquid called wort is filtered out of the mash and transferred to the brew kettle. The wort is then brought to a rolling boil and hops are added to contribute bitterness, flavor, and aroma. After boiling the wort is transferred through a heat exchanger, cooling the liquid down to fermentation temperature. The wort is the pumped into a primary fermenter where yeast is added. After one week of fermentation the fresh ale is transferred to a cold conditioning tank where it is clarified and carbonated for a second week. Now at the height of freshness, the ale is racked to kegs where it is ready to be distributed to the market and served. (See attached designs for the specifications on the major brewing equipment)

Management Team: HallandAle Brewing Company is a privately held corporation managed by its Co-Founders. All decisions will be made by the management team, officers, and shareholders, in compliance with the company's articles of incorporation and bylaws.

Co-Founder: Manny Jannes is an accomplished brewer and brewery owner with five years of experience brewing award winning beers for several local breweries He is one of the owners and master brewer of Descarga Brewing Company. He has consulted for Weed Reaper Brewing Company and is currently consulting for Holy Mackerel Brewing Company. He has a solid understanding of the brewing process and the market for craft brewed beer. Manny has over twenty years' experience in a General Manager roll within the retail industry; successfully managing stores in excess of 8 million dollars annually. Manny will be responsible for all brewery operations and sales.

Co-Founder: Leonardo Amaya has over 20 years' experience in the food and beverage industry and was owner of Bold Brew Cafe. He is one of the owners of Kombi Beer. Leo has an incredible flair for the culinary infusion of many styles and has a strong understanding of food and beer pairings. He has lived in Hallandale Beach since 2008 and owns several properties in the city. Leo's wife Diana Amaya is on the Hallandale Beach Education Advisory Board.

The management team is committed to the success of this plan. All decisions will be made with the best interest of the business and other investors in mind. Whenever necessary, the management team will rely on the assistance of professionals on a contractual basis.

Plan of Action: Having signed the Grant Agreement with the Hallandale Beach CRA the following tasks in order of priority will be completed. Manny and Jessica (Architect) will complete the final building utility and brewery layout designs. Once these plans have been finalized, Manny and Leo will place an order for the capital brewing and kitchen equipment. The capital brewing equipment will be delivered 8-12 weeks from time of order. Kitchen will be delivered when requested Manny and Leo will personally supervise the installation of the brewery and kitchen once the equipment has been delivered. While the capital equipment is being fabricated, Manny and Jessica will complete the process of acquiring all permits, submit application for conditional use with Planning and Zoning Division, Planning and Zoning Board, and City Commission Hearings. Once a building occupancy permit has been issued, and while waiting for the main brewing plant to be fabricated and delivered, the management team will carry out the building improvements which have been designated as their responsibilities in the lease. At this time, the management team will also complete the process of filing for liquor and business license from the relevant federal, state, county, and city authorities.

PRODUCTS

Initial Products: HallandAle Brewing Company will initially produce three flagship beers; a dark ale, an amber ale, and a pale ale. The dark ale, brewed within the general porter style parameters which have proven so popular in South Florida will have a distinct roasted —chocolate flavor, nicely balanced with the mild-spicy hop nose characteristic of premium hops. This ale will be fairly dry, medium/full bodied and quite dark, with a beautiful mocha colored head. Our experience with the many different porters and dark ales being produced throughout the United States, leads us to anticipate that this ale will be very popular with beer drinkers who enjoy dark American porters, stouts, and brown ales.

Our second flagship will be an amber ale brewed within the style parameters commonly known as a pale ale, which includes amber-colored ales. This amber ale will have a lightly sweet, malty flavor, balanced by the aroma hops. This ale will have a fruity-hop flavor in the finish, and the hop nose, which is so characteristic of amber ales. It will be light to medium bodied and amber-red in color. Pale ales are one of the most popular American beer styles being produced by craft breweries today. It is a beer that is both satisfying to the experienced beer drinker and yet not too overpowering as to frighten off the neophyte.

Our third flagship product will be a heffewiesen, a light bodied, pleasantly phenolic and quite clean wheat ale. It has an attractive bananaclove aroma that pushes to the front of the nose. This beer is designed to be light and thirst quenching, with a lower alcohol content. The hops chosen for this beer do not get in the way. Therefore, it's low in bitterness but, due to the acidity, you will not miss it a bit. It finishes very clean and dry. The heffewiesen is a style highly influenced from the northern German wheat beer style. This beer is intended to appeal to the experienced ale drinkers, as well as novice beer drinkers who have not experienced the ale revolution.

Future Products: In addition to these three flagship beers, other highly innovative styles are being planned as limited, seasonal offerings. For example, IPA's, Stouts, Fruit Ales, Lambics, Sour Ales, Barley Wines, Wheat Wines, Belgian Styles, and Saisons. All of these styles are popular specialty styles enjoying steady seasonal demand. The production of specialty beer will depend on local demand as expressed in customer surveys by management. They will be produced on a limited rotating basis, depending on the availability of fermenters. The management team will actively pursue contract brewing accounts with local licensed retailers who are interested in having a special beer produced solely for sale to their own customers. In addition our tap room will allow us to offer new products on our own taps to test the public's response to these new products before offering them for wholesale to other retailers.

Although our beer recipes will be designed to meet certain style parameters which have been proven to be popular by other breweries in the industry, our beer recipes will be adjusted to showcase our innovation and unique quality. We are not looking to imitate the products of other brewers. On the contrary, we are going to produce our own unique ales within certain style parameters which have a demonstrated track record of success.

Suppliers: One important element of our beers which will help to ensure their popularity will be the use of the highest quality, traditional ingredients. All of our ingredients will be purchased from the most reputable local suppliers. Our malted barley will be supplied by Country Malt Group. They carry the finest domestic and imported specialty malts which are needed for our ales. Our hops will be supplied by Hop Union. They carry all of the premier hops produced in the Pacific Northwest, and many of the noble hops varieties of Europe which are essential for producing original versions of traditional ales.

Finally, our yeast will be supplied by White Labs. They specialize in storing and shipping yeast cultures in such a variety that brewers have the opportunity to craft beers to their own particular flavor profile. As the growth of the industry indicates, there is an increasing variety of handcrafted beers being made available to the American public. The advantage our beers enjoy in this market will stem from using the finest ingredients provided by the most reliable local suppliers. In addition our beers will have their own unique flavor profile and be the freshest available to our local customers. Finally, our products will benefit from the additional demand which is generated by the customers knowledge that these beers have been produced within the community with local pride.

Bottling and Export: When starting a craft brewery, it is necessary to consider all available options. This is especially true when it comes to the issue of how the product will be packaged for sale. The issue of packaging is largely dependent on the amount of capital available and the nature of the local market. While there are some benefits to bottling a portion of the breweries capacity for local retail sales, a top-quality bottling line entails a large initial capital investment and a much larger input of labor.

After having carefully researched the local market, we have determined that our best option is to initially concentrate solely on draft sales. We have concluded that s sufficient demand exists to support our business with draft sales alone. Our strategy is based on the belief that the most important task is to first concentrate on developing a sound local base of satisfied retail accounts and loyal draft beer drinkers, before diversifying our product line.

Despite our decision to initially concentrate on local draft sales, we recognize that a bottled product on local grocers' shelves would help to raise our public profile and increase our profit margin. For this reason, the management team of HallandAle Brewing Company is carefully examining the option of hiring another brewery to produce for us sometime after the second year of operation if necessary, to meet this demand. Many small scale brewing companies in the United States have enjoyed tremendous success by contracting with a different brewery to produce a bottled product which the contracting company then distributes to its own customers. By contracting a bottled product from another brewery we will be able to service our own draft accounts without reducing our draft capacity. In addition, contracting would allow us to increase both market exposure and profit margins, without the great expense associated with owning and operating a bottling line.

Finally, we would like to raise the issue of exporting a contracted bottled product. We have carefully researched the beer market and developed several important relationships with beer importers and retailers. It is our firm belief that a specially designed product, contracted from a local brewery and then wholesaled by HallandAle brewing company, would receive shelf space and enjoy steadily growing sales.

THE INDUSTRY

Industry History: Within the brewing industry, HallandAle Brewing Company is considered to be a production craft brewery in planning. A production craft brewery is a small brewery that sells beers in bottles or kegs to other retailers. Today these small breweries are proliferating rapidly, but they are a relatively new phenomenon which can be considered revolutionary.

The craft brewing revolution began in 1977 with the birth of the New Albion Brewing Company in Sonoma, California. The primary characteristics, which distinguished New Albion and other new craft breweries from the established industrial breweries, were there small size, limited financing, and concentration on producing premium, specialty lagers and ales rather than the standard pale lagers. The most significant difference was the fact the most new craft breweries were build from the grass roots by home brewers with more enthusiasm than formal training.

Today there are about 7500 craft breweries and brew pubs operating in the United States. Industry statistics demonstrate that while the major brewing companies are flat-to-declining in sales, the market for premium specialty product is expanding. Tastes are changing, and quality, variety, flavor, and freshness are what the beer drinking public is coming to demand. It has become evident that every city, even small communities, have the potential to support at least one local brewery, and larger cities such as Portland and Seattle are already supporting many more.

As the craft brewing industry has grown and prospered, a whole host of associated industries has sprung up to meet the needs of craft brewers. Brewing consultants, equipment fabricators, ingredient suppliers, publicist, distributors, and even educational programs are now catering to the special needs of craft brewers, as a result, making the business of small-scale craft brewing much easier today than just ten years ago. These enterprises are now devoting large sale staffs and significant resources to servicing the craft brewing industry, because they are confident that this is a growth industry for the future.

Institutional Support: As the craft brewing industry has grown and prospered, a variety of new professional organizations, trade associations, and educational programs have been established to assist craft brewers to educate the public. Take for example Brewers Association. this professional organization performs many essential tasks for the craft brewing industry including: publishing industry statistics and information; presenting the industry in legislative lobbying efforts; conducting trade shows and conferences; undertaking public relations with the media; and developing programs for brewery insurance, quality control, and continuing education for brewers.

Some important examples of the quality publications provided by this organization include: Zymurgy (American Homebrewers Association), The New Brewer (Brewers Association), the North American Resource Directory (Brewers publication). These and other publications are an invaluable resource for starting and successfully operating a craft brewery.

The ever-increasing number of trade conferences and craft brewing festivals which help to improve the quality of our product and educate the beer drinking public about our products includes: The Great American Beer Festival, the Craft Brewers Conference, the American Hombrewers Association National Conference, and a rich range of local and regional beer festival.

Finally, in any discussion of institutional support we cannot neglect the educational programs which recently have been designed specifically to further educate craft brewers. These programs include: the Beer Judge Certification program; courses on quality control and brewing technology at the Siebel Institute of Technology in Chicago; and a variety of programs on sanitation, microbiology, brewing business management, etc., at the University of California at Davis.

The sources above represent only of the proliferating number of institutional resources available to craft brewers today.

Industry Prospects: Well into the second decade of the craft brewing revolution, a variety of statistical clearly demonstrates that this industry is much more than a temporary fad. We are at this time witnessing a proliferation of craft brewing enterprises, trade associations, institutional support, and beer festivals, organized specifically to celebrate craft brewing. Likewise the great number of associated industries which view the craft brewing industries which view the craft brewing industry as an important market for their products and services is a strong indication that the craft brewing phenomenon has matured into a stable industry. statistics on annual production levels, malt beverage sales, tax assessments, and contemporary trends in the sale and consumption of various alcoholic beverages, indicate a growing consumer preference for craft brewed beers. In both the United States and Canada, beer is the alcoholic beverage of choice. However, while the production of major domestic brewers and the volume of imported beers has declined recently, the specialty beer market shows no signs of losing momentum. In one interesting recent development, a number of craft breweries have even begun to export their product to Europe and Asia, with Japan being a particularly promising market.

Two potential negative trends which may affect the industry are neo-Prohibitionist and tax increases. Neo-Prohibitionist legislation which cuts into the profit of brewers or restricts their market (i.e., alcohol warning label requirements and restrictions on sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages) will always remain a threat in a pluralistic society. However, lately a greater amount of information has become available providing the healthful aspects of moderate drinking. In addition the craft brewing industry and support institutions such as the Institute for Brewing Studies are working to protect small brewers' interests.

Unfortunately, in times of economic instability, many government bodies may look at the success of today's and tomorrow's brewers as a way to increase revenues by raising taxes on beer. One answer to this threat are the lobbying associations which have been organized to protect the interest of small brewers. One important example of these lobbying efforts is the exemption won by small brewers (less than 60,000 barrels production) from the new Federal Excise Tax on beer, imposed in 1991. In our region, the Florida Brewers Guild, and the Miami Brewers Alliance are actively lobbying the State Government.

Growth in Adversity: Despite the important efforts of these groups, the potential for new taxes will continue to be the greatest threat to the craft brewing industry. Although small brewers have been exempted from the latest Federal Excise Tax increase, this exemption could be lifted, or other state and local taxes could be imposed. It is important for this reason to consider the potential impact of higher taxes on our industry. Recent statistical analysis of beer sales have reached the conclusion that beer sales are relatively price inelastic and respond more slowly to increases in the price of beer. These studies would seem to indicate that a not unreasonable rise in taxation on beer would only result in a minor drop in beer sales. Although the determination of who bears the cost of a given price increase is complicated, these studies indicate that with a product as price inelastic as beer, the increase will probably be paid by the retail customer.

One additional set of conclusions from these studies concerns price increases and product substitution. The evidence indicates that there is probably little substitutability, among customers between beer, wine, and distilled spirits. This means that (all other factors remaining constant) an increase in price of one category, should not result in the substitution of another category of alcoholic beverage. Consequently we may conclude that the growth in sales of specialty beers, which are priced as a premium product, is the result of changing consumer tastes, not changes in the price structure of beers

Studies of income elasticity also demonstrate that beer sales are relatively inelastic with respect to the customer's income. Recent industry reviews, which consider the impact of the recession and the business cycle on beer sales, have reached the conclusion that the business cycle has little discernible influence on the craft brewing industry. Finally, industry statistics clearly show that throughout the last recession, the craft brewing industry continued to grow at an impressive rate.

Clearly there are threats to our industry, but statistics demonstrate that consumer tastes and preferences are changing. In such a market, the best strategy is to provide the consumer with the highest quality product. Beer drinkers are also voters who will go to great lengths to reject unreasonable attacks on their favorite beverage.

THE MARKET AND COMPETITION

Potential Customers: The most important customers of HallandAle Brewing Company are the owners and managers of local licensed liquor retail outlets. These local outlets consist of pubs, taverns, and restaurants in the counties of Broward, Dade, Monroe, and Palm Beach. However, since it s our marketing strategy is to concentrate on satisfying the demand of a core group of customers in the first year, a select number of retail outlets in these counties will receive priority.

Game Time

All of these establishments listed above are located in our core local market. Most of these establishments have at least four taps allocated to specialty and local craft brewed beers, several have more than six craft beer taps. Manny and Leo have spoken with the owners of all these establishments, and they have all expressed strong interest in featuring our quality locally produced beer once it is available.

An important part of our marketing strategy is to concentrate on providing our customers with the best possible, most responsive service they have ever received when purchasing beer. Consequently, it will be necessary to take on new accounts carefully, so as to have enough beer in stock to meet the demand of our core accounts. One potential mistake would be to try to provide beer for more customers than our initial capacity allows. For this reason we will coordinate with our distributor on prioritizing our accounts according to certain criteria which we would like to see our retail customers meet. The fact is that we do not want to sell our product to simply any retailer that expresses an interest. We want our products in the right places, alongside other quality beers, and receiving the proper attention necessary for serving craft brewed beer at its peak of quality. For this reason we will initially concentrate our sales efforts on establishments which are already serving craft brewed beers, before offering our products to bars which are not yet carrying craft brewed beers.

There are additional licensed retail outlets in Hallandale Beach, which would be satisfactory retailers of our products. The fact is that there has been a very positive response from licensed retailers in our local market. Our only problem will be to decide which outlets may carry our products in the early months when production is still limited, and which will have to wait. We will make this decision carefully and with the help of our distributor so as to develop a core group is satisfied, loyal clients, while planning for a much broader distribution in the future. Eventually we intend to introduce our products in local restaurants and taverns which have not yet begun to offer their customer craft brewed beer.

Competition: Our competitors in the local market are primarily those craft breweries in California, Colorado, and New York who distribute their product to this region, in addition to the superpremium draft imports being offered. The local breweries include:

Funky Buddha Brewing Company
Wynwood Brewing Company
Concrete Beach Brewing Company
Biscayne Bay Brewing Company
MIA Brewing Company
J. Wakefield Brewing Company
Miami Brewing Company
Saltwater Brewing Company
Hollywood Brewing Company
Gulf Stream Brewing
Bangin' Banjo Brewing Company
Weed Reaper Small Batch Beers
Lincolns' Beard Brewing Company

26 Degrees Brewing Company Tank Brewing Company

All these breweries distribute their product to local licensed retail outlets in our local market, through licensed liquor distributors. These local distributors include:

Brown Distributing
Gold Coast Distribution
Cavalier Distribution
Crafty Connoisseur

First let us begin this evaluation of our competition with a brief discussion of the super-premium imported draft beers which we consider to be our competitors because many of them are similar in style and price to domestic craft brewed beers. Although these beers are by a large excellent product, the fact remains they find it difficult to compete with craft brewed beers. The imports do have strong name recognition in many cases, but they cannot compete in the areas of freshness, direct and personal service to local retailers, or local brand loyalty. Furthermore, shipping costs and advertising for these products usually place them several dollars above craft brewed beers in price, and these beers are subject to newer, higher Federal Excise Tax rates. Statistics demonstrate that while craft brewed beers are enjoying steady annual growth in sales, the market share of super-premium imports has recently begun to decline.

By and large, the domestic craft breweries listed above, all consistently produce quality products. For this reason, it is the responsibility of HallandAle Brewing Company to make all efforts to help consumers distinguish its beers from those of their competitors. Some brewing companies rely on the excellent quality of their products and word of mouth as their strongest marketing point. This strategy is used by new brewing companies which in the early years have less capital available for advertising. Other pioneer craft breweries benefit from greater brand recognition, due to their longer operating history and easily recognizable logos.

Another way to win loyal customer support is to develop distinctive flavor profiles, such as a characteristically assertive hop flavor. In contrast to these methods, some breweries spend thousands of dollars on strong advertising campaign through the local and national media to increase their market share. Others with smaller advertising budgets may choose to rely on less expensive, but often equally effective, point-of-sale promotional materials.

Finally, the most fundamental marketing strategy which may be employed is through pricing. Some brewers choose to under price their competition to gain market share. Others choose to price their products above the market average, in order to capture an image as the brewer with the most premium products. Still others may price their products near the industry average. This strategy helps them to avoid being seen as a discount brewer, while at the same time avoids driving off potential customers who refuse to buy beer which is priced significantly above that of the competition.

All the brewers competing in our market rely on some mix of the above marketing strategies to acquire a base of loyal local support and then increase their market share. HallandAle Brewing Company will likewise pursue a marketing strategy appropriate to its production goals, financial means, and the characteristics of our local market. Our marketing strategy will be carefully discussed in the next section of this business plan. However, it should be emphasized here that the demand for craft brewed products is growing and as the statistics demonstrate, the craft brewing industry's share of the beer market is also growing.

Most craft brewers are in agreement that competition is healthy. The great variety of craft brewed products available to consumers has only served to further educate the beer drinking public to the quality of our products, creating ever greater demand. Although we are in competition with other craft brewers, our share of the market will not come so much at their expense, as it will at the expense of imported beers and domestic industrial brewers whose customers are gradually shifting to fresher and more flavorful craft brewed products.

Market Size and Trends: The size of our local craft brewed and specialty ale market in South Florida is sufficiently large to provide us with a market share which will ensure the initial success of HallandAle Brewing Company. Likewise, this market has been steadily growing at a rate which is more than adequate to achieve our projected growth in sales. Our market research and conclusions are based are based on statistical analyses of beer sales volumes by individual breweries, which are reported to the State Liquor Control Board each month. These sales reports have also been analyzed and reprinted in a more comparative form published monthly by the Florida Division of Alcohol Beverages and Tobacco. In addition to these reports, we have carefully questions all the local breweries, local licensed retailers, and local licensed beer distributors to determine the average monthly level of craft brewed beer sales and the growth in sales which have occurred over the last several years.

Using the above sources, we have determined that for last year, average sales of locally craft brewed beers in our market was approximately 2,596,402 gallons. Consequently, a careful analysis of our local market leads us to the conservative estimate that the size of the local market for our products last year was approximately 27,357 kegs of specialty beers each month on average.

The same sources, which we relied on to determine the size of our local market, have also helped us to determine that for the last several years the Florida market has been growing by approximately 32% annually. When questioned on their expectation for future growth, local beer distributors expressed the opinion that our local market will continue to grow at or near the present level of 47% annually. If we trust the experts which are most familiar with our market, we can anticipate that with 47% growth this year, sales of beers in our market should reach approximately 40,214 kegs of specialty beers each month on average. Given the demographic and economic growth trends of our local region, we believe this estimate to be on the conservative side.

Local Demographic Growth: The Fashion Arts and Design District is a few miles away from white sandy beaches. The Fashion Arts and Design District will act as the hub for local entertainment, creative businesses and artists. Designers, urban planners, photographers, printers, social media gurus, performers, and musicians will reside in and around the area. Retail sales can be expected to grow along with the Fashion Arts and Design Districts' population. More and more restaurants and pubs will be opened to serve the needs of our growing community. Consequently, local restaurant and bar sales of specialty beers can also be expected to grow with the State, its government, and the city.

The management team of HallandAle Brewing Company is determined to produce approximately 6448 kegs (1040 barrels), during the first twelve months of production. All the 6448 kegs will be marketed and sold in the tap room and within our local market in the first year of production. These approximate 6448 kegs will be sold in our local market through the following marketing channels:

- 1. Retail pint sales to the public in our taproom on average: $6 per pint. The following is the estimated breakdown of sales in our local market through these channels in the first year of production:
- 2. Retail pint sales to the public in

Tap room: 940 kegs
Distribution: 5,508 kegs

This means we will be marketing approximately 3 Barrels or approximately 78 kegs each month on average during the first year in the tap room and approximately 84 Barrels or approximately 440 kegs each month on average in distribution. If we assume a total local market of approximately 27,357 kegs each month on average for this year, then HallandAle Brewing Company intends to capture 1.8 percent of the local market during this time.

We intend to be competitive in our local market. Therefore, let us examine what we believe to be the important advantages which we have over our competitors in the local market which will help us to win 1 percent market share in our first year.

First, HallandAle Brewing Company will be a local entity in which the community can take special pride. Our brewery and tap room will create jobs and enhance the atmosphere of the Fashion Arts and Design District. It is common sense to assume that given everything is equal in the areas of price, style, and quality, people will choose to patronize local producers rooted in their community.

Second, HallandAle Brewing Company will be able to provide the freshest most innovative beers to our local market. Consequently, kegs of our ales will never reach the market beyond their peak level of maturity, nor before they are perfectly matured either.

Third, we are committed to making the best, most innovative beers possible, using the highest quality ingredients available. We are serious when we make this commitment. We would not be entering this market if we were not certain that we could make excellent ales which will be highly competitive. Brewing innovative flavorful beers is what we do and we believe that a commitment to quality will go a long way towards assuring our long term success. Consistently high quality beer can sell itself without much promotion, but poor quality beer will not succeed for long, no matter how actively it is promoted.

Fourth, HallandAle Brewing Company will be able to serve its products on its own taps in our very own tap room. Our own retail outlet will permit us to try new products before offering them for light distribution to the wholesale market. In addition, our tap room will allow us to receive the full retail pint price on a significant percentage of our barrel production. Every keg sold at retail pint price rather than wholesale keg price, will significantly increase our profit margin, while at the same time helping us to reach our 1.8 percent market share target. Our tap room will be a casual drinking and dining room with the stainless-steel brewing equipment physically present and in the same space as our customers. This will allow customers to view the activities on the production floor while enjoying their favorite beverage and eating their favorite meal. There will also be an outdoor beer garden with outdoor games lounge chairs and an entertainment area for live bands to play. The beer garden will host a movie night once a month. We will be family and pet friendly. Our tap room will also have games, and TV's that will increase length of stay. Our tap room will also be the display and sales center for our retail promotional items which will bear our corporate and product logos. Although the cash profit on these items is only 50 percent, they represent a much greater value as free advertising by increasing our exposure in the community.

By bringing the management team into direct contact with the customers in our local community, our own retail outlet will help us to increase our market share as well as compete more effectively with outside craft brewers. Two-way communication between our management team and our customers will provide us with invaluable feedback on our products. Furthermore, as beer drinkers make themselves more comfortable at our establishment, HallandAle Brewing Company's image as a local community enterprise will be enhanced.

Fifth, HallandAle Brewing Company intends to price its products competitively amongst our strongest competitors. It is simply part of our strategy to always price our innovative products at a competitive level, since this is what our local customers have told us would be of particular importance when they are making decisions on trying new beer on their taps.

Finally, and most important, we believe that our commitment to service will assure that we earn a leading share of our local market and increase that share into the future. No other brewer has the potential to provide the level of prompt service to our customers and licensed retailers in our local market that HallandAle Brewing Company has. We have already begun to develop close relationships with our fans and the licensed retailers in our local market. We have guestioned them as to their priorities when deciding which beers to drink or put on their taps, and we have carefully observed the preferences of their customers. We at HallandAle Brewing Company are committed to the relationships we have begun to develop with our future customers, licensed retailers and their customers. By using customer surveys, working closely with our employees, and carefully listening to licensed retailers, their customers, our customers, and beer drinkers in South Florida, we are sure to earn a strong share in our local market and keep it.

MARKETING PLAN

The Fundamentals: It is the intention of the management team to establish the long-term profitability and success of the HallandAle Brewing Company by carefully concentrating on building a core group of satisfied local customers. This core group consists of the residents of Hallandale Beach and the surrounding cities, as well as licensed liquor retailers operating pubs, taverns, and restaurants in the counties of Dade, Broward, and Palm Beach. Ultimately our customers are the beer drinkers within our local market who patronize the establishments of our licensed retail customers and more importantly our own tap room. Consequently, the key to our marketing strategy is to make the highest possible quality beers which will satisfy the tastes and demands of beer drinkers in our market.

Our efforts to make the best beer possible will be achieved by the following means. First, all beer profiles and recipes have been selected after carful market research to determine exactly what is popular amongst beer and ale drinkers in our market. The most important parts of our research consisted of actual beers being served at many local festivals, where our beers drinks are eager to provide us with instant feedback and conversations with licensed retailers whom we've had many long conversations about what their customers preferred when ordering a craft brewed beer and what they were looking for when buying beer to stock their bar taps. In addition, interviews with local beer distributors have been particularly helpful in pointing out which beers sell well in our local market, why they sell well, and what styles will compete well in this market. Having made the decision as to what flavor profiles we would like to produce in our beers, Manny will determine the exact balance of ingredients and specific brewing techniques necessary to achieve those flavor profiles.

Our three initial products have been designed specifically to satisfy local tastes and demands, as they have been identified by our market research. However, we believe that ale drinkers in our local market have similar preferences to ale drinkers throughout the Florida beer market, and we expect our products to be competitive throughout that broader market once we start distribution. As a final note regarding the design of our recipes, we intend to carefully monitor the responses of beer drinkers to our products when they first reach the local market and long after. Consumer feedback will be the means by which we gauge the reactions of beer drinkers to our products, so that we may make any necessary adjustments.

Another key aspect of our marketing strategy, which is intended to ensure we make the best beer possible and then sell that beer, our determination to use the finest brewing ingredients available. Only premium ingredients will be used, without exception. We have made certain that our suppliers all have excellent reputations among the craft brewing community in our region. Nevertheless, as our operations progress, we continue to demand the highest quality from our suppliers and will be prepared to find new sources of brewing materials whenever our current suppliers fail to meet the exacting standards of HallandAle Brewing Company.

Brewing the best beer most innovative beers possible is our motto, and we will not cut corners to save a few dollars at the expense of beer quality. We will use the finest ingredients, top quality brewing equipment, and well-proven brewing methods to establish our market share. Only a quality product will create consumer loyalty in our core local market and ensure regular growth in sales as our market expands

On-Premise Retail Sales: The tap room is an important sales and distribution outlet for our products. Our tap room will be designed to accommodate a maximum occupancy of patrons. The space will contain a serving bar, a retail promotional area, seating for approximately 70 inside and 60 patrons outside, with some additional standing room available. The tap room is designed to be an extension of the brewery where patrons can witness the brewing operation first hand and talk to the brewery staff, while enjoying some of our quality ales.

Our tap room is intended to enhance the experience of drinking a quality ale and eating quality food, when all of one's senses are brought into play. There will be no smoking in our tap room because tobacco smoke would interfere with the beer drinkers' ability to fully appreciate the flavors and aromas of the beers being served. Furthermore, we believe that a no smoking environment will be greatly appreciated. We will be giving the tap room a warm feel by using reclaimed wood on the walls and Edison bulbs to provide mood. Decorations will be limited to a few local artists painting and a few tasteful beer related sculptures. A variety of comfortable chairs and tables will be provided for causal seating as well as a lounge area with sectional seating and coffee table. In addition, flat screen TVs and a sound system will add to the comfort and feel of tap room. Game boards, shuffleboard tables, and other bar games will be available. In our tap room, customers will be able to make a variety of retail purchases. Initially we will have a small selection of T-shirts and glass wear for sale, but as cash flow permits, we will include other promotional items to increase our merchandise sales. Regarding beer sales, customer will be able to purchase beer in a variety of volumes. Besides pints and 10-ounce schooners, a sampler or beer flight which includes a small glass of each of our products will be offered for sale. In addition, customers will be able to have takeout vessels called "growlers" filled for off-premise consumption. Regarding food sales, we will have the option of have tapas style Latin infused fair. Customers will be allowed to do takeout and we will partner up with services like Deliver Dude, Uber Eats, and Postmates to provide delivery services to our fans.

Distribution: Even though one of our strong focuses in our first year will be to build our report with our local customers inside the taproom, it is our strategy to concentrate on winning the loyalty of licensed retailers on our local market. In this effort, with the help from one of Crafty Connoisseur will have primary responsibility for local sales outside our building. We believe that only through close personal contact with our local customers can lines of communication and a long term business relationship be established. Therefore, a big emphasis will be placed inside our four walls. At the same time, we are firmly establishing these relationships with our local community, a properly trained employee of the company will assist on acquiring new accounts and increasing sales in the local and market

Promotional Merchandise: Promotional merchandise, such as T-shirts, glassware, tins, bottle openers, etc., at two-to-three times our cost in order to realize a consistent and reasonable profit.

Advertising and Promotions: Leo is responsible for point-of-sale promotions and advertising. Initially point-of-sale of promotions table tents, coasters, and tap-handle. When cash flow permits, other items such as neon signs, bar towels, bottle openers, and mirrors, all displaying our logo will be given to local retailers. All promotional items are considered to be an advertisement tool since they will display the corporate logo and logos of individual products.

Leo's experience working in the food and beverage industry has taught him that the owners of these establishments and their service employees are especially grateful when promotional materials are maintained by the company distributing them.

Our research of the food and beverage service industry has also led us to conclude that only a knowledgeable bar and wait staff can properly represent our products to the consumer. Consequently, Manny and Leo will provide brief, yet informative, introductions to our products for the wait staff of our licensed retail customers. These product introductions are intended to familiarize these important representatives of our products with the brewing methods of HallandAle Brewing Company. In addition, our licensed retail customers and their wait staff will be invited to visit the brewery and witness firsthand the production of the beer they will later be selling. These brewery tours are intended to help develop a special relationship between HallandAle Brewing Company and those who serve our products to beer drinkers in our core market.

Raul Diaz Gonzalez is also responsible for carrying out the direct advertising of HallandAle Brewing Company products to the consumers in our local market. When cash flow permits, advertising will be conducted throughout the local print media. Throughout the year, at specific times we will run adds in New Times, the paper with the largest circulation in our local market. Social media will also be a large component of our exposure to our fans, and customer. Through application like Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter we can reach a broad fan base while delivering promotional, and events at no to minimal costs to the brewery. We believe that this advertising strategy will provide the greatest exposure for our products, in the most cost effective manner. However, we will regularly survey our customers to determine whether or not the learned of our products through these printed ads and social media outlets. Depending on the results of these surveys, certain changes in our advertising strategy may be considered.

In regards to surveying our customers and the general beer drinking public, the following method will be employed. Manny will design a survey sheet to determine the public's response to our products and our advertising campaign. These survey sheets will be distributed and collected in the establishments of our licensed retail customers. In addition Manny will conduct regular visits to these establishments to maintain contact with our licensed retail customers, their employees, and their customers. These fact-finding visits will be most frequent in the first year of distribution, particularly in the first months of distribution when product evaluation and recipe adjustments will take place. It is our determination to never lose touch with the needs of our customers and the tastes of the beer drinking public.

Finally, regarding the issue of public relations, we at HallandAle Brewing Company believe that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. What this means in a practical sense, is that Manny will actively pursue a strategy of meeting with local groups which are concerned about issues related to excessive drinking. It is our intention to develop an open dialogue and positive relationship with local citizen groups which advocate responsible drinking. Likewise, we will take the initiative to foster a cooperative relationship with local law-enforcement agencies, to show them we are as concerned about alcohol misuse as they are. At the HallandAle Brewing Company we advocate the enjoyment of quality beer in moderation, not the consumption of alcohol in large quantities. In order to avoid any potentially harmful publicity in the future, which may stem from misuse of our products, we will make certain that the relevant interest groups understand that we take issue of alcohol misuse as seriously as they do information on sales, beer inventory, and the status of raw materials' stocks.

In addition, HallandAle Brewing Company will hire an accountant to review our books regularly in preparation for the quarterly tax filling which is required by law.

The Co-founders believe it is important to be personally involved with every facet of the company's operations. No task will be assigned to an employee before we have repeatedly performed that task ourselves and can then instruct and oversee the employee properly. This same philosophy extends to the management of our corporate accounting, which we intend to be directly involved in.

The Co-Founders feel confident they can perform the tasks outlined above. They have a long-standing relation and a well demonstrated record of working together to solve problems. In addition, the management team will be assisted by contracted professionals as needed

Employees: HallandAle Brewing Company is scheduled and budgeted to hire employees at regular intervals. The first full-time employee will be hired in TBD to have enough time to properly train that employee before full brewing and sales operations commence. As per our agreement with the HBCRA we are dedicated to hire local talent whenever possible. We will make jobs available first to residents of Hallandale Beach, keeping firmly in mind that we will hold each interview to the standards of HallandAle Brewing Company's guidelines. Furthermore, this individual must be flexible and prepared to perform a variety of additional task, including cleaning, and festivals. At the beginning of the sixth month of operation and again in the twelfth month, additional employees will be hired and trained to perform a variety of tasks associated with beer production and sales. The need to hire these additional employees at regular intervals is anticipated because of the work load associated with projected increases in brewing capacity and sales in our local market. This should bring our total number of employees to help with retail sales and beer production at near full-production capacity to a total of 5 (beer side) employees by the end of year two of operations. It is not anticipated that any additional employees will be required beyond this point. However, the growth and need of the business will dictate the how often we hire and for what positions.

It is the management's philosophy that employees are an asset to the company, not a drain on resources. We intend to train our employees thoroughly, treat them well, and provide them with responsibility when they earn it. Employees who perform well and demonstrate an interest in long term employment with HallandAle Brewing Company will be compensated for their efforts in year-end bonuses to be decided by the management team. Eventually we hope to develop a profit-sharing program to properly reward all those employees of HallandAle Brewing Company who make a significant contribution to the company's success.

We believe these tasks can be completed within the scheduled time periods above. However, one serious potential delay would be in achieving the minimum of level of investor capital which is necessary for us to begin ordering brewing equipment and scheduling building improvements. Further delays might arise in acquiring a building permit and in coordinating the work of the contractors with the overall project and with the city inspectors which review many stages of the building improvement process. Any such delays would influence the timing of the entire project and could potentially delay start-up by as much as several months. A delay in your start-up of beer production would entail certain additional expenses until sales of beer began. Nevertheless, we are confident that should certain reasonable delays occur, the overall success of this project would not be jeopardized.

THE FINANCIAL PLAN

Assumptions: The following information has been provided in order to fully identify the assumptions which the management team has made in projecting the growth in sales, expenses, revenue, and profit of HallandAle Brewing Company for the first four years of operations

Revenue: The revenue section is broken down into several categories: wholesale through distribution, and retail tap room sales. All beer sales are based on barrel volumes where one barrel equals 31 gallons or two 15.5-gallon kegs. First year production and sales levels are based on our research of the local market and are considered to be relatively conservative projections of local demand. Retail pint sales are projected to flatten out to 101 kegs each month since they will be limited by the size of our tap room.

Cost of Goods Sold: This figure includes the ingredients only. Water, energy, excise tax, and business taxes are itemized separately. Nevertheless, they are major component of the production of beer. The number of brewing ingredients are based on actual costs from supplier and correspond with the given production cost averages.

Utility costs are based on estimates of local energy and water rates for a given level of production. Tax rates are based on current rates of $7.00 per barrel federal excise tax, approximately $14.88 per barrel state excises tax, and a nominal business and occupation tax. These excise taxes could be subject to increases in the near future. Costs of merchandise sold in our retail outlet are taken to be 50 percent of the retail sales price. Cost of brewing ingredients, water, energy, and supplies are project to remain relatively constant over time as the proportion of the costs of producing a given volume of beer. We anticipate that rising prices for these ingredients will be offset by the savings realized through larger volume purchases.

Gross Profit: When the total Cost of Goods Sold is subtracted from the Gross Sales, the resulting figure represents the Gross Profit. Our Gross Profit percentage from year to year will decrease slightly as the ratio of beer sales through a distributor (which has the smallest profit margin) increase, while our ratio of retail beer sales (which have the largest profit margin) remain relatively stable.

Operating Expenses – General and Administrative Expenses: Refer to the Pro Forma Variable Cost Section. These numbers are based on cost estimates from suppliers and service providers. In some cases, irregularly billed payments are spread out over the twelve months of the year as average monthly payments. The different expenses on the general and administrative schedules are projected to by 1 percent each month. The exception is rent which remains constant, and salaries and payroll taxes which will be increased in accordance with the discussions in the sections of this proposal on employees and management compensation.

The final expense which is factored into the Company's Operating Expenses is the depreciation rate on certain assets. The assets being depreciated include: start-leasehold improvements (building construction costs), brewery equipment, handling equipment (forklift, keg dolly, etc.), cooperage (kegs), fixtures and furnishings (tap room furnishings, office equipment, lighting, etc.), and other capital assets purchased during the operational phase to expand production capacity. Depreciation is based on a straight line method over a period of seven years.

EBIT (Earnings

Before Income Taxes): When Operating Expenses are subtracted from the Gross Profit, the resulting figure represents the Company's Earnings before corporate income taxes. Interest Income from cash in the Company's general account at Bank of America is then added to the EBIT line, with the resulting sum being the Company's Profit before corporate income taxes. Corporate Income Taxes are calculated at current rates and when subtracted from the Profit before taxes, result in the Company's earnings once paid out dividends, any loan principle, and any new equipment purchases have been subtracted from the Company's Net Income/Loss.
